Introduction

What PRRN Members Do

The individuals and companies listed herein are members of the Public Record Retriever Network (PRRN). Simply put, PRRN Members are professionals hired to search or obtain documents for specifically requested categories of public records at local government agencies, such as courts or recorder's offices. These services are typically provided for issues involving pre-employment screening, investigation work, or issues involving lending, litigation, or legal compliance.

Record retrievers may also be known as abstractors or record researchers. In a number of states, the term abstractor denotes a professional who performs research services commonly associated with real estate title and ownership documents.

Many PRRN members perform record retrieval as an exclusive business. However, members may also be employed as private investigators, record search firms, screening companies, title companies, process servers, genealogists, or paralegals.

While record retrievers tend to be localized, a number of retrieval companies specialize in offering statewide or national coverage. These larger firms often hire local retrievers as independent sub-contractors in order to provide this wider network coverage.

PRRN was the first group in the public record retrieval industry to adopt Industry Standards and a Code of Professional Conduct specifically for the retrieval of public record documents. PRRN members are recognized as the nation's leaders in local public record searching and document retrieval.

Why These Record Retrievers Are Experts

There are five significant attributes of a record retriever contributing to competency—

1. Local Experience and Expertise

- Knows exactly where to go to obtain the needed information and knows where to search for each record type
- Knows personally and has a great working relationship with the people who work at the government agency
- Knows exactly what data appears, or does not appear, on records or the index and what the data means
- Understands the procedures for historical searches

2. Searching Time Frame

- Knows just how long a client's project will take
- Knows whether it is possible to expedite the project
- Completes the project as promised on time

3. Delivery of Document

- Can deliver the document when and where required
- Will only conduct a search of records that are legally available

The 2026 PRRN Membership Directory

- Knows and explains the possible pitfalls (data that may be lacking, turnaround time issues, court fees, etc.) involved in obtaining the needed information

4. Confidentiality and Privacy Protection

- Maintains records in strict confidence and uses physical and network security. Will protect personal identifiers.
- Knows how to properly destroy documents used to place orders or results and can guarantee destruction practices to ensure protection of personal information.

5. Knowledge of Costs

- Knows the basis for the costs—clerk's fee, copy fee, certification fee, etc.
- Can reasonably estimate the total fee

Often when obtaining public records for clients, the retriever is a link in an information chain. Retrievers do not review or interpret the results or issue reports in the same sense that investigators or consumer reporting agencies do. Instead, retrievers return search results or copies of file documents per instructions from their clients who package this information with other content to create finalized reports or investigations.

How to Become a Member of PRRN

If you or your firm provides hands-on record retrieval service at the county level, you are eligible to join PRRN. To obtain a questionnaire and additional information about joining, you can email prrn@brbpublications.com, call BRB Publications at 800-929-3811 or download the necessary forms at <https://prrn.us/>. The PRRN membership fee is based on the number of counties serviced by true employees.

See the back of this Directory for further information about PRRN.

How to Use this Directory

The Directory has two sections – the Retriever County Index and the Member Profiles – which cross reference to one another.

Note: An important fact to keep in mind throughout this book is the word county may represent a parish or independent city, per the nuances of a particular state.

Section One - The Retriever County Index

The County Index displays by state the counties (or parishes or cities) where PRRN Members provide on-site research themselves or with their true employees. In other words, these are the people who do the on-site research. If the member uses other retrievers, this coverage area is indicated in Section two.

Below is a sample county entry for Jefferson County, Alabama.

CR	CV	PR	US	BK	RE	TJ	VS	JEFFERSON

•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	Confidential Background Services [SOP] 205-447-1539
•	•	•	•	•	•		•	Eagle Eye Screening Solutions Inc 714-315-3739

•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	TrueSearch LLC 703-705-8011 or 240-659-3880

The bullets displayed under the codes indicate yes, this retriever provides this type of record in this particular county. If there is no bullet, then this type of record is not provided. Below you will see the 'Key to Types of Records Retrieved' which provides definitions for these codes. The key will be located at the bottom of each page throughout the Retriever County Index pages.

CV	Civil Court	TJ	Tax Liens/Judgments
PR	Probate Court	VS	Vital Statistics
US	U.S. District Court		—
BK	U.S. Bankruptcy Court	[SOP] = Provides Service of Process

Per the above example, the [SOP] indicator next to Confidential Background Services means this firm also provides Service of Process for its clients.

Section Two - The Member Profiles

This is an alphabetical listing of all the PRRN Members within this Directory that displays basic information about each member. Included are the contact information, web page, a description of services, how the member handles billing, and a general description of the company specialties.

Two coverage areas are listed:

1. Local Retrieval Area

The Local Retrieval Area shown indicates only those counties where a record retriever does an in-person search by himself or herself, or with a true payroll employee. Overall, the average coverage area provided by a retriever including all payroll employees is seven counties.

Only counties shown in the Local Retrieval Area are listed in the Retriever County Index section.

2. Coverage with Sub-Contractors

If a retriever provided has expanded geographic coverage (and many do) by hiring other retrievers this area is indicated in the section of the PRRN Member Profile called Coverage with Sub-Contractors. These sub-contractors (also called correspondents or 1099 people) are not waged and may also work for other companies. You will see many retrievers who maintain a network of correspondents, thus providing statewide or even nationwide coverage.

Please Call a Retriever Only for the Type of Records Retrieved

We suggest to first review the categories of records retrieved by a company prior to placing a call about service. For example, if a PRRN Member only searches recorded documents or real estate records at the recorder's office, you are wasting your time and the retriever's time to ask for a search of a criminal or civil court record.

The next section provides a series of suggestions to consider before placing an order with a record retriever.

Ten Tips When Working with Record Retrievers

Researchers are professionals hired to search or obtain documents for specifically requested categories of public records at local government agencies, such as courts or recorder's offices. When obtaining public records for clients, the researcher is a link in an information chain. As such, researchers do not review or interpret the results or issue reports in the same sense that investigators or consumer reporting agencies do. Instead, researchers return search results or copies of file documents per instructions from their clients who package this information with other content to create finalized reports or investigations.

Before placing an order with a public record retriever, be very clear at the outset on what you expect a record retriever to do for you. Accurately communicating needs and expectations goes a long way to avoid major misunderstandings between clients and retrievers.

Here are ten aspects of a search we think are essential to review before you hire a retriever. Of course, the one big question not on this list that you will want to ask, "What is the cost?" The reality is this answer cannot be determined until the ten items below are agreed upon first.

#1. Determine Exactly What Type of Records You Want Searched

You must always be crystal clear about what information you need. Asking a retriever to do a "criminal record search" is not an adequate description. For example, do you need a search of only felonies, or for felonies and misdemeanors? If misdemeanors are desired, records may be located at a different court or even multiple courts within the county. Should the search include DWIs? Is a federal court search also required?

If the search involves civil court records, be sure to specify if you want the search conducted on the plaintiff, the defendant, or both.

For any type of case, specify whether you require either open or closed cases searched, or both.

#2. Determine Where You Want to Search

Frequently this question is associated with the previous question. The way courts and recorder's offices are organized can and does vary from state to state. Simply be sure to ask if there is more than one location where information might be obtained.

For example, if you are searching court records the decision of which court location(s) may be a complex matter in certain states and counties. Perhaps a county may have two courts with the same jurisdictions, but without a combined index to search. Or perhaps an upper court in the county needs to be searched for higher level records and a lower court for lower-level records. Another search factor is knowing if lower and upper-level courts in a county have overlapping jurisdiction with respect to civil case limits or with certain misdemeanors.

Searching recorded documents can have the same issues. For example, in several New England states the recorder's offices are located at the town or city level and there is no countywide source.

You must rely on the retriever to help you determine if you wish a search to be conducted in all or only part of the county.

If you are requesting a search based on a ZIP Code, be aware there are over 9,000 ZIP Codes that cross county lines. You may wish to independently check which county is correct for the subjects given address or ZIP Code.

The 2026 PRRN Membership Directory

#3. Decide the Time Period to Search

When hiring a retriever to search public records, be sure to give specific instructions on how many years to search. Better yet, ask what the retriever's normal or standard search period is for that particular county.

Many local jurisdictions have a computerized record index, but the index may have limitations on the number of years displayed. Thus, if the date range of the index does not meet your needs, the retriever will need to perform a separate, manual search of the older records.

A good retriever will give guidance on these nuances.

#4. Know and Define the Subject's Name

State clearly in your request the names you wish to be searched. This is especially true when foreign names are involved, or if a record is filed using a woman's maiden name. Another issue is the use of middle initial. For example, when middle initials are used as part of the name such as "George H. Ruth" or "G. Herman Ruth" it may be necessary to spell out the middle name.

#5. Let the Retriever Know if You Anticipate Records or Hits

Public record searching is not a test. It always helps the retriever to know if you are aware of any current records in existence already on the subject. Of course, some people say, "That's none of his or her business, the retriever is hired to do the search." That's fine, but you must realize that public records can be mis-indexed by the filing officers or court personnel.

Most retrievers will extend their search procedures beyond their usual thorough methods if they did not get a hit when you let them know one is anticipated.

#6. Ask "How Will the Search be Conducted?"

This question can have a number of significant answers and should be asked. There are various ways records are searched onsite.

Some courts and recorder's offices require that only the clerk is allowed to perform the actual search. If so, your instructions must be crystal clear to include all the name variations needed. And be sure to ask if there is a clerk's search fee that will be added to the bill total. Perhaps for legal reasons you require an official search — one done by the government office itself and certified — make that requirement clear at the outset.

Some offices provide free onsite public access terminals for use by the public but knowing the throughput dates on the terminal is important. Be sure to ask if it will be necessary to search an index in older searchable formats such as ledgers, microfiche, or microfilm.

Many agencies make the record index available to the general public on the Web, plus there are third party vendors who maintain record databases. These online sites may be incomplete or not up to date. A retriever may wish to do a preliminary search of such a database, but make sure you specify if you want the search to be performed onsite. Further, a retriever should not conduct a search on a government or private online database without full disclosure and your expressed permission.

In summary, it is incumbent upon you to ask the retriever about the possible search methods and clarify how you wish the search to be performed.

#7. Specify What Documents You Want to Obtain and/or What Results are to be Reported

Obtaining documents can be quite costly. Perhaps you think you are asking for a list or index of public records on a subject, then the retriever hands you 149 pages pertaining to batches of UCC filings. Make sure you first determine if there is no choice but to obtain documents as part of a search. An able retriever should inform you of the possibility of excessive copy costs in advance of performing the search.

Ten Tips When Working with Record Retrievers

Other issues may surface. What if the retriever finds an exact name match, but another identifier (like a DOB) does not match? What if the first and last name match as well as the DOB, but the middle initial does not? Do you want to have this information reported to you? A good idea is to ask the retriever what his/her standard procedure is when near matches occur.

Keep in mind that there have been lawsuits filed by employers when a close match is not reported when in reality it was a “positive hit” on a criminal record, or vice versa.

#8. Confirm Your Deadline

Let the retriever know when you need the results and ask if your time expectation is reasonable. In jurisdictions where government personnel must perform the search, you will need to know upfront if their normal turnaround time does not fit your needs. In those situations, ask if the government agency offers an expedited service for an additional fee. Also, keep in mind the weather may come into play and may cause a delay. Be prepared to adjust your expectations.

#9. Determine How You Want the Results Provided to You

Be clear on how you want the results delivered. Do you want results by fax, by telephone, email, overnight courier, or just by regular mail? Ask the retriever if there are different fees for different delivery methods.

#10. Keep a Written Log of the Request

The nine items summarized above should cover your complete instructions. If you have an ongoing relationship with a retriever, that retriever should maintain a standard set of client instructions associated with your orders. If you are working with a new or relatively new retriever, you will lose nothing by being comprehensive with your instructions.

Keep a log with the date and time the order was placed, the time and method of expected delivery, and whom you spoke if you placed the order by telephone. Using standard, written procedures will minimize the chances of making a mistake and help ensure your instructions are legible and complete.

Keep these ten tips in mind before you hire a researcher, and you will avoid misunderstandings and improve your chances for an accurate search.

New Hampshire

In New Hampshire real estate transactions are recorded at the county level, and property taxes are handled at the town/city level. The recording officers are Register of Deeds (for real estate only) and Town/City Clerk (for UCCs). Be careful to distinguish the following names that are identical for both a town/city and a county: Grafton, Hillsborough, Merrimack, Strafford, and Sullivan. The following unincorporated towns do not have a Town Clerk, so all liens are located at the corresponding county: Cambridge (Coos), Dicksville (Coos), Green's Grant (Coos), Hale's Location (Carroll), Millsfield (Coos), and Wentworth's Location (Coos).

Rhode Island

There are 5 counties in Rhode Island, but there is no county recording of public records in this state. All recording is done at the town/city level at one of 39 locations. The recording officers are the town/city clerks.

Note: There are three city locations that bear the same name as their respective counties - Bristol, Newport, and Providence.

Vermont

Vermont has 14 counties and 246 towns/cities which have 246 recording offices. There is no county recording in this state. All recording is done at the city/town level. Many towns are so small that their mailing addresses are in different towns.

- Watch for these 4 towns that have the same names as cities - Barre, Newport, Rutland, and St. Albans.
- Watch for 11 cities or towns that bear the same name as a Vermont county - Addison, Bennington, Chittenden, Essex, Franklin, Grand Isle, Orange, Rutland, Washington, Windham, and Windsor.

If a county is not listed, look in Coverage with Sub-Contractors in the Profiles Section.

Motor Vehicle Record (MVR) Providers

The following PRRN members provide Motor Vehicle Record (MVR) services, assisting clients in obtaining driving history information maintained by state motor vehicle agencies.

Access to MVR data is governed by the federal Driver's Privacy Protection Act (DPPA), which restricts the disclosure and use of personal information and requires that all requests fall within permissible uses defined by law.

To learn more about each provider, including the states they serve and full contact details, please refer to their complete profiles in the PRRN Member Profiles & PRRN Associate Member Profiles section of this directory.

PRRN Member Profiles

The PRRN Member profiles that follow are listed in alphabetical order by company name. If the member is an individual the last name is used.

Each profile includes (if provided) the following information—

- Address and telephone numbers, including fax when available
- Web page address; email address
- Summary of types of records retrieved
- Local retrieval area — a list of counties each services directly
- Other geographic areas serviced through correspondents
- Year established
- Project turnaround times
- Billing and payment terms
- If they perform service of process
- Additional information, including special areas of expertise

Although the usual billing practices used by each of the retrieval companies are indicated, no information about actual pricing is included. Fees are subject to private negotiation and depend on the type and extent of any given project.

Tips on Using the Profiles Section

Know That Some Retrievers Are Mobile

Do not be alarmed if you don't get a live person when calling a PRRN Member. Many retrievers are on the job at the local courthouse or recorder's office. Most do carry a cell phone. As a general rule, retrievers will return calls as they are able. In the Member Profiles section all known telephone numbers are indicated. The previous section—the County Index—only indicates the main telephone number.

Coverage Area by Sub-Contractors or Networks

As mentioned, many retrievers also maintain a network of other retrievers who provide services in additional counties not listed within the County Index. The people they hire are often known as sub-contractors or correspondents.

When a retriever provides expanded geographic coverage using sub-contractors, this area is indicated under the Coverage with Sub-Contractors portion of the profile.

PRRN Associate Members

Listed separately at the end of this section are PRRN Associate Members who offer related products including regional or national searches. We encourage you to read these profiles to learn about the service these firms provide.

The PRRN Code of Professional Conduct

The Public Record Retriever Network (PRRN) Code consists of ten guidelines according to the way each member of the Network conducts its business.

Competency Guidelines - Refers to each of the types of records a PRRN member is proficient in retrieving

1. We know where each type of local public record is maintained.
2. We access these agencies regularly.
3. We understand the contents of the documents we retrieve.
4. We search records ourselves in those agencies that do not conduct searches for the public.
5. We maintain good relationships with agency personnel.

Customer Service Guidelines - Refers to the way in which each member of PRRN is expected to serve its clients.

1. We return calls promptly.
2. We complete projects as promised.
3. We explain our charges in advance.
4. We will expedite results, on request.
5. We will explain how agencies maintain their records, on request.

The 2026 PRRN Membership Directory

PRRN Membership and Benefits

PRRN was established in 1995 by Michael Sankey & Carl R. Ernst. Its standards and ethics have been adopted by the PRRN's Director, Kimberly Sparger.

The PRRN Mission

Our mission is to promote development within the public document retrieval industry for—

1. Standards for document retrieval procedures and professional conduct
2. Improved marketing and sales practices

Who is Eligible for PRRN Membership?

Any firm who retrieves public record documents is eligible for PRRN Membership.

Regular Membership is open to any firm or individual that physically searches public records or retrieves documents at county offices, or at courts within the covered county or counties, or visits local, state, or local federal government agencies within a county. The counties a member may list in their coverage area are limited to only those counties serviced in-person by that member or by their FICA-employees.

Associate Memberships are also available. This type of membership is for firms and individuals that utilize the services of document retrievers and/or support the PRRN Mission. Examples are screening firms, database companies, software firms, attorneys, etc. Associate membership is open to companies with coverage throughout the globe.

The Benefits of PRRN Membership

Promoting Your Company

PRRN Members are strongly promoted to the business entities that use public records and hire public record retrievers. For example —

- The "Find a Retriever" Internet query is a free locator service exclusively showing PRRN Members at:
 - ✓ <https://brbpublications.com>
 - ✓ <https://prrn.us>
- The PRRN Membership Directory is published and distributed to thousands of possible new clients. Only PRRN Members are listed.
- PRRN Members are exclusively profiled on the BRB Publications' Public Record Research System (PRRS). This is an Internet subscription product used by companies that hire retrievers. When a county agency is profiled, there is a dropdown box with names of PRRN Members who service that county.
- The PRRN Member listings are prominently featured on the Web version of The National Directory of Local Court & County Record Retrievers.
- Two versions of the PRRN Member Logo may be downloaded. There is a print version for members to use on advertising and promotional materials. There is also a version available to be placed on a web page.

PRRN Membership and Benefits

Other Benefits Include:

- An invitation to join the 'Members Only' community group via LinkedIn
- Public Record Retrieval Industry Standards Manual (PRRISM)
- The CRA/Public Record Researcher Agreement Template
- Credit Forms and New Account Forms
- Member Roster that includes contact information for each member
- 10% Discount on all annual subscriptions at www.BRBpublications.com

What Does it Cost to Join PRRN?

Membership in PRRN is based on a Jan. 1 through Dec. 31 calendar year.

- The Local Retrieval Area on the Membership Questionnaire is based on the number of the counties a member personally services, in-person or with true FICA/Medicare deducted employees. The Local Retrieval Area and dues calculation does not include counties covered by correspondents, sub-contractors or other retrievers.
- The fee for PRRN Membership for a calendar year is $12.00 per county as described above. The minimum annual fee is $39.00. For enterprise firms covering more than 20 counties, there is a special pricing scale that is dependent on the number of counties serviced by true employees. Please call us for pricing. If a firm has more than one office, each office with a separate address is treated as a separate member.
- The Local Retrieval Area on the questionnaire is based on only the number of the counties you personally cover in-person or with your true FICA/Medicare deducted employees (and not by correspondents, sub-contractors or other retrievers).
- Associate Membership is $49.00.

How to Obtain Membership Forms

For additional information and to obtain the necessary membership forms, email us at prrn@brbpublications.com or download the documents from the PRRN home page at <https://prrn.us>.
